For more than a half century, Morris Nathanson has been at the forefront of creative interior design for the hospitality industry. Along with his own artistry, his influence on many of today’s top hospitality designers is a testament to his lasting vision.

Originally trained in theatrical and stage design, Nathanson worked early in his career for the Paramount Restaurant Supply Company in his native Rhode Island, where he helped create iconic concept designs for companies such as Dunkin’ Donuts. With an entrepreneur’s drive and an artist’s eye, he was a pioneer in the field of restaurant and hospitality design when he opened his own firm in 1967, Morris Nathanson Design. Since then Morris has nurtured, trained, and mentored scores of designers and project managers, while helping to launch the concept and brand development for dozens of landmark restaurant companies.

Nathanson has been designated as a ‘Thought Leader’ by the American Society of Interior Design-
Christopher C. Muller is Professor of the Practice of Hospitality Administration and former Dean of the School of Hospitality Administration at Boston University. Each year, he moderates the European Food Service Summit, a major conference for restaurant and supply executives. He holds a bachelor’s degree in political science from Hobart College, and two graduate degrees from Cornell University, including a Ph.D. in hospitality administration. Email cmuller@bu.edu
