Boston University
Where should the scholar live?
In solitude, or in society?
in the green stillness of the country, where he can hear the heart of Nature beat, or in the dark, gray town, where he can hear and feel the throbbing heart of man? I will make answer for him, and say, in the dark, gray town.

BOSTONIA adds its sincere tribute to the multitude of congratulatory messages which reached President-Emeritus Warren on his recent ninetieth birthday. To few educators has been granted the privilege of seeing and fostering the growth of a great university from its incipiency to its splendid vigor at the end of its first semi-centennial. No one who knows anything about Boston University can ever think of it without at the same time thinking of its organizer and its first administrator, William Fairfield Warren. What the graduates of Boston University think of their first president is eloquently attested by the commemorative meeting of Epsilon Chapter, recorded elsewhere in this issue.

SOME years ago BOSTONIA published Professor Lyman C. Newell's "The Teacher's Vow." These noble words of dedication to a high calling attracted widespread attention and were frequently quoted. A few months ago Professor Dallas Lore Sharp gave expression to his own exalted conception of the teacher's vocation in the form of ten "New Year's Resolutions." Believing that the readers of BOSTONIA will welcome an opportunity of reading side by side the "Vow" of Professor Newell and the "Resolutions" of Professor Sharp, we print them elsewhere in this issue.

THE annual reports of President Murlin and of the Deans of the Schools and Colleges of the University are always awaited with great interest. From the abstract of these reports, presented elsewhere in this issue, our readers will learn much regarding the inner developments of the University during the period covered by the reports.

THE grand total of the Fiftieth Anniversary Fund to March 24, 1923, as shown by the detailed figures elsewhere in this issue, is $1,748,459.08, an increase of $93,351.17 over the total reported in the January issue of BOSTONIA as of December 19, 1922.
We call special attention to the announcement in this issue regarding the Summer Session, which begins July 5 and continues seven weeks, ending August 23.

The growth of the summer session, under the Directorship of Professor A. H. Rice, has been one of the most notable features of the recent history of the University. Beginning in 1915 with a somewhat limited number of courses, offered largely by members of our own faculty who saw a promising field which the University had not as yet cultivated, the summer session has steadily enlarged its work, has added many new courses, and has secured, in addition to the regular teaching staff of the University, the services of well known professors from other colleges and universities. The response to the offered advantages has been large. In 1921 the registration reached 672; the following year it increased to 964. From present indications it will exceed one thousand during the coming session.

The central office is making every effort to complete the endowment campaign among the alumni. In recognition of the loyalty and generosity of the graduates, as shown by their contributions of time and money to the Fiftieth Anniversary Fund, the University will soon publish a pamphlet containing the names, listed by classes, of all the graduates who have subscribed to the Fund. The first booklet issued will be that for the College of Liberal Arts; it will appear on or about May 1.

Of the 659 graduates of the University who received their degrees last June 157 men and 18 women (27 per cent of the entire number) have gone into the practice of law, 123 men and 29 women (23 per cent) have gone into business; 90 women and 49 men (21 per cent) have begun teaching; 70 men have entered the ministry; 7 women and 5 men have gone to foreign mission fields; 31 men and 6 women are practising medicine; and 2 women are in social service. The remaining 77 members of the group are engaged in various occupations.
ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT AND DEANS FOR THE YEAR ENDING June 30, 1922

In his annual report, presented November 25, 1922, for the year ending June 30, President Murlin discusses the heavy cost of training college students as compared with the amount received from them for tuition. It has been estimated that the average annual cost per student for buildings, equipment, and instruction in American colleges and universities is nearly $1,000. The present charge for tuition in the various departments of Boston University averages less than one-fourth of this amount. The annual income of the University has grown in ten years from approximately $150,000 to $1,200,000, but expenses have grown more rapidly than the income. He says that the Boston public has in many ways expressed hearty appreciation of the educational policy of Boston University, but it has not awakened to the serious situation which the University faces in inaugurating and maintaining this service for the benefit of the city. In the development of the next twenty-five years the University will need millions. To meet its present financial needs it is asking for $4,500,000. Of this amount there had been pledged at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1922, a total of $1,500,036.41.

Dean William M. Warren, in his report for the College of Liberal Arts, announces a grand total of 1,743 students for the year, including 664 in the Courses for Teachers. This total represents an increase of nearly 100 per cent over the registration of 1918-19. The total enrolment for the last four years was: 1918-19, 889; 1919-20, 1,309; 1920-21, 1,513; 1921-22, 1,743. The freshman class numbered 203, 7 more than the year before and 57 more than the average for the preceding five years. There were 47 students in the two-year Pre-Medical course.

Dr. A. H. Rice presents the report for the Saturday, Late Afternoon, and Evening Courses. The total registration was 664, an increase of 103 over the registration of the previous year. Of special significance is the large proportion of teachers that avail themselves of the opportunity offered by the University. It is also found that a considerable number of the students in these courses are enrolled in other departments, particularly in the Graduate School, while several are supplementing their undergraduate work by these courses. The 95 students thus registered from other departments include 77 from the Graduate School, 9 from the College of Liberal Arts, 4 from the College of Business Administration, and 5 from the School of Education. The plan of conducting certain of these courses in the evening has proved successful. Evening courses were given in English, Music, and Sociology, with a total registration of 286 students. It seems certain that with official encouragement and with the necessary enlargement of the teaching force a solid service can be rendered by the University in these evening courses.

Dean Everett W. Lord reports a total of 182 members of the faculty in the College of Business Administration. The number of students receiving instruction from this faculty was 5,257, classified as follows: Day Division, 1,511; Evening Division, 2,466; Saturday Division, 118; American Institute of Banking, 666; Boston Gas Institute, 247; Havana Branch, 160; Rexall Correspondence Course, 62; other extra mural courses, 27. Under contract with the United States Veterans' Bureau some 340 veterans have been in attendance at the college for the past year. These ex-soldiers are not required to meet the usual entrance requirements, but are admitted, after recommendation of the Veterans' Bureau, on passing a special entrance examination. They are not, as a rule, candidates for a degree, but are taking special courses in accounting, business management, advertising, or salesmanship. A few, however, who meet all entrance requirements, also qualify for the Bachelor's degree. Referring to the Havana Branch of the College of Business Administration, Dean Lord says that although the University maintained during the year both day and evening classes in Havana, the number of students was not as great as had been anticipated, and the financial depression in Cuba was so serious that the guarantors were able to give but little financial support. The Board of Trustees accordingly instructed the Standing Committee of the College of Business Administration to take steps to close the Havana Branch. The American Institute of Banking courses have each year increased in interest and numbers. They are given for the Boston chapter of the American Institute of Banking and are, with few exceptions, identical in general content with the evening courses of the college. The courses offered by the college in practical business subjects, for the benefit of the employees of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, have proved so satisfactory to the company that the college was requested to outline a plan for a permanent institute. This has been done, and Professor Harold Whitehead has been appointed Director.

Dean T. Lawrence Davis reports a total net attendance of 981 in the College of Secretarial Science for the year. Of these, 640 were in the Day Division, 279 in the Evening Division, and 73 in the Saturday classes. The freshman class numbered 281.

Dean James A. Beebe reports a total enrolment of 375 in the School of Theology. The geographical distribution of these students is as follows: New England States, 99; Middle States, 142; Southern States, 30; Western States, 86; foreign countries, 18. One hundred and twenty-seven colleges, universities, and theological schools were represented in the student body. The only change in the faculty during the year was the retirement of Dr. Marcus D. Buell, for thirty-eight years Professor of New Testament Exegesis. During these thirty-eight years Dr. Buell had served as Assistant Dean and Dean for nineteen years. In recognition of this service the Trustees have made him Dean-Emeritus. Professor W. J. Lowstuter succeeds Dr. Buell as head of the Department of New Testament.

Dean Homer Albers begins his report by saying that ten years ago the Law School was in some distress because of the small number of students enrolled. Today the number exceeds the present accommodations. For the school year ending June 19, 1922, there were 720 students enrolled, as compared with 581 for the previous year. Among faculty changes Dean Albers notes the appointment of Gustavus Hill Robinson as a full-time Professor for the year beginning September, 1922. The report notes with regret the resignation of Professor Chandler Mason Wood, who had served the school with great ability since 1910. Another resignation noted with much regret is that of Professor James F. Colby of Dartmouth College who, for some years, had given a course on International Law and Jurisprudence. His course will be conducted by Professor Robinson. Herbert W. Rathbun of Westerly, R. I., during the year gave a course of lectures on Rhode Island and Connecticut Practice.

Dean John P. Sutherland, at the beginning of his report, refers to the high standards of instruction maintained in the fundamental medical sciences pursued during the first two years of the course. He names as heads of departments in these fundamental sciences Professors Begg, Pratt, Mendenhall, Rowe, and Watters, ably seconded by Professor Weysse and Assistant Professors Allen, Calderwood, Woodman, Hooker, Belding, and Ulrich. Dean Sutherland says that these men form a corps of instructors in the fundamental medical sciences well worthy of the recent advances made in medical sciences. By means of this personnel it has been possible to bring about a most efficient concentration and co-ordination of courses. The plan has been to focus the attention of the student upon a given subject until that subject has, for practical purposes, been mastered.

At the annual meeting of the Association of American Medical Colleges, held in Chicago in March, 1922, the Boston University School of Medicine was elected into full membership. Dean Sutherland says that this recognition of the ideals, accomplishments, and standing of the school on the part of the strongest medical organization in the country is a satisfaction to all who are interested in the progress and reputation of the School. The enrolment for the year was 171, of whom 142 were men.

Dean Arthur H. Wilde submits the fourth annual report of the School of Education. The total enrolment for the year was 1,090, an increase of 522 over the previous year. The total registration for the four years since the establishment of the school is: 1918-19, 75; 1919-20, 249; 1920-21, 568; 1921-22, 1,090.

An important development of the work of the year is the beginning of a permanent faculty, with the appointment of two professors on full time. Such appointments had hitherto been deferred, because the budget of the school did not permit them. Dean Wilde pays a tribute to the part-time lecturers, who have rendered loyal service. John J. Mahoney has been appointed Professor of Education and will give his attention to the development of a program for the teaching of citizenship, the teaching of English in the elementary school, and supervision of teaching. Guy M. Wilson has been appointed Professor of Education and will give instruction in educational psychology and in related fields.

The Art Department, under the headship of Miss Blanche E. Coleman, has made good progress during the year. The department has undertaken to place itself in touch with the art departments of the public schools, to stimulate professional interest among the teachers, and to create an interest in the department among the students. A Saturday afternoon class has been established for the service of teachers and other friends of art.

The school has secured the consent of a number of men and women who are actively engaged in public education to serve on an Advisory Board. The Board has already been of large service to the school in preparing its program for the coming year.
Dean Walter S. Athearn reports an enrolment of 472 in the School of Religious Education and Social Service. These students represent sixteen religious denominations. As an integral part of the laboratory system which the school is developing, the Malden system of week-day religious schools was inaugurated during the year. Two junior high schools and one grammar school were successfully conducted.

Dr. Arthur W. Weyssse reports a total registration of 290 in the Graduate School, 157 of whom are men. During the year 138 students were added to the school, of whom 110 were candidates for the Master's degree and 12 for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. Sixteen were enrolled for graduate work only.

Dr. Alexander H. Rice reports on the eighth year of the Summer Session. The registration of 964 showed an increase of 43 per cent over that of the previous year and of 74 per cent over that of 1920. The total registration for the three years was: 1920, 558; 1921, 672; 1922, 964. During these three years the number of courses increased from 70 to 123 and the number of instructors from 44 to 67. The number of teachers taking the courses also showed a great increase. In 1920 there were 160, in the following year, 201, in 1922, 285. The number of students who come to the Summer Session from places outside of New England is steadily increasing. In 1922 there were 99 students from 23 states outside of New England and 15 students from foreign countries. Another gratifying indication of the growth of the school in influence is the increasing number of students from other institutions who come to Boston University for summer courses. In 1922 there were 36 students from Tufts, 32 from Dartmouth, and 36 from other higher institutions of learning.

The report of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees notes the election of Mr. George S. Smith as treasurer of the fiftieth Anniversary Endowment Fund. Mr. Smith assumed the duties of his office October 1, 1922. The report refers to the purchase and fitting up of the new dormitory for the College of Secretarial Science and notes that the University is also using three houses on Bay State Road for the young women students, primarily from the College of Liberal Arts. During the year the statutes of the University were so revised as to provide for the election of three new members of the Executive Committee. At the meeting of the Committee on November 14, 1922, Mr. F. W. Remick, Mr. George S. Smith, and Mr. Addison L. Winship were elected.

THE TEACHER'S VOW

I will see the good in all pupils and lead them on to higher attainments.
I will be patient and forbearing, confident in the belief that kindness and generosity will ultimately triumph.
I will scorn error, deceit, and all forms of falsehood, persistently foregoing sarcasm and injustice.
I will claim all nature as my heritage and spend a portion of each day quietly in God's open air.
I will hold daily communion with my own soul.
I will accept my remuneration, however small, without envy, complaint, or discouragement, never forgetting that a teacher is a leader into the higher life, and not merely a wage-earner.
I will work each day in unshaken assurance that peace and power come in full measure to all who are ready for the truth.

LYMAN C. NEWELL.

TEN NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS OF AN AVERAGE TEACHER

1. I am resolved to say, "Day by day, in every way, I am getting better and better," and to believe it of my children.
2. I am resolved to be human first, last, and all the time, and a pedagogue only at teachers' conventions.
3. I am resolved to behave as well as I wish my children would, if possible.
4. I am resolved to make my appearance, my manners, my character count more with my children than books or buildings or tests or methods.
5. I am resolved to wear a flower in my hair or one in my buttonhole, even if carnations soar to fifteen cents apiece.
6. I am resolved to go down to my classroom as Moses went down to Egypt, for children are God's chosen people.
7. I am resolved to hold fast to a portion of the faith in my children that God has in them, who has already committed to their keeping the fate of the world.
8. I am resolved to hold fast to the faith in myself that God has in me, Who has committed to me, in the children, the fate of the world.
9. I am resolved to make my classroom the greatest socializing force in America, for on my clear thinking and right feeling depend that of my children and of the nation.
10. I am resolved to know the art of teaching, the matter for teaching, the greatness of teaching, and to make my teaching work the most magical human chance in all of the world's work.

DALLAS LORE SHARP.
Dr. James Roscoe Day, Chancellor-Emeritus of Syracuse University, died at Atlantic City on Tuesday, March 13. Dr. Day was a Trustee of Boston University from 1881 until 1885.

'69 (S.T.B.) Rev. Antonio A. Arrighi died in Westfield, N. J., February 26. Mr. Arrighi was born in Florence and as a lad served as a drummer boy with Garibaldi’s army. Coming to America he studied at Ohio Wesleyan University, then served in the U. S. army, and in 1865 was graduated from Dickinson College. Four years later he graduated from the School of Theology. Returning to Italy, he was ordained in the Methodist Episcopal ministry in 1875. Since 1880 his affiliations had been with the Presbyterian Church. He founded the first Protestant mission among Italians in America.

'78 (M.D.) Dr. Emily Metcalf Thurber died at her home in Providence on Friday, June 30, 1922. At the time of her death she was in her 86th year. She was born in Providence in 1837. She graduated from the School of Medicine of Boston University in 1878 and began her practice as the second woman physician in Rhode Island. She was a charter member of the Rhode Island Homeopathic Society and was the first pathologist to serve on the staff of the Homeopathic Hospital. She was also a charter member of the Rhode Island Woman’s Club, the Providence Plantations Club, and the Rhode Island Gynecological Society. She served for many years as physician for the Tobey Street Children’s Home, and was one of the consulting physicians for the Sophia Little Home for girls and women. During the world war she was a reserve medical officer on home duty. She was married in 1858 to Isaac Brown Thurber of Providence. Mr. Thurber, who died in 1921, had for more than half a century been chemist for the Gorham Company, silversmiths. She is survived by three sons and a daughter.

'80 (LL.B.) Bordman Hall died on Saturday, December 30, at his home in Brookline. Mr. Hall was born in Bangor, Me., in 1856. During the first Cleveland administration he was an assistant U. S. district attorney. He served on the Boston School Board from 1885 until 1888. In 1893 he was elected to the Board of Aldermen. For several years he had maintained an office on State Street, Boston, and had been largely engaged in the management of trust funds and estates.

'84 (LL.B.) Otto Andrea Nesmith, U. S. A. retired, died Friday, February 23, and was buried on Monday, February 26, in the Arlington National Cemetery. Captain Nesmith was a veteran of the Spanish-American war, serving in the Cuban Campaign. During the World War he was Judge-Advocate at Governor’s Island, N. Y.
'84 (LL.B.) Arthur Hastings Russell, a lecturer on admiralty law for a number of years, died at his home in Winchester on Thursday, February 22. Mr. Russell was a native of Boston, but had lived in Winchester for thirty-six years. He prepared for college at the Boston Latin School and graduated from Amherst College before entering the School of Law of Boston University. He was a cousin of the late Governor William E. Russell. He is survived by his wife and three daughters. The funeral services were held on Saturday, February 24, at his home. The burial was in Wildwood Cemetery, Winchester.

'86 (A.B.) Mrs. Amy Bridges Rice died at her home in Newton Centre in March. The funeral services were held on Saturday, March 10, at her home. Mrs. Rice, who was the wife of Senator Abbott B. Rice, was born in Hopkinton. She was a member of the Newton Centre Women's Club, the Wednesday Club, and the Society of University Women. She is survived by her husband and three sons.

'88 (A.B.) Josie Anna Davis died suddenly Friday, February 2. A note from Abby B. Bates, '87, speaks feelingly of Miss Davis as a great organizer and educator. During her long term of service in New York thousands of students came under her instruction and the permanent influence of her winning personality.

UNIVERSITY NOTES

WOMEN GRADUATES' CLUB

The Boston University Women Graduates' Club held a meeting in the Gamma Delta Room, 688 Boylston Street, Friday evening, February 16. The speaker, Dr. Mary R. Lakeman, M.D. '95, took as her subject, "Maternal and Infant Hygiene." The soloist was Miss Reina P. Hadley; the reader, Miss Veronica Dickey from the Emerson College of Oratory. The program was in charge of Dr. E. Adrienne Polsey, A.B. '04, M.D. '08. Mrs. Eva Phillips Boyd, A.B. '03, was Chairman of Hospitality.
A meeting of the Women Graduates' Club was held at the home of Mrs. Percy G. Bolster, 217 Norfolk St., Dorchester, on Friday afternoon, March 23, 1923.

This meeting was primarily a business meeting and the following amendments to the By-laws were passed:

OFFICERS

ART. V.— Sec. 1. In place of the word "five" read "nine" directors.

DUTIES

ART. VI.— Sec. 4. Omit the words, "and to arrange press notices."

Sec. 6. Insert the words, "including press representative" after "necessary to its work."

ELECTIONS

ART. VIII.— Sec. 4. To read: "At the Annual Meeting in May, 1923, one director shall be elected to serve for one year, two directors to serve for two years and two directors to serve for three years. At the Annual Meeting in May, 1924, two directors shall be elected to serve for three years and at each succeeding Annual Meeting three directors shall be elected to serve for three years."

Plans were discussed for the annual Author's Reading, to be held in Jacob Sleeper Hall Wednesday, April 11. After the business meeting a social time was enjoyed while refreshments were being served. The Club is indebted to Mrs. Bolster for a most enjoyable afternoon.

LOUELLA E. BRAGG, Corresponding Secretary.

The proceeds of the Annual Author's Reading of the Women Graduates' Club held in Jacob Sleeper Hall on Wednesday evening, April 11, were devoted to placing Boston University on the list of contributing colleges to the American Classical School at Rome. Mr. Edward Elwell Whiting, of Whiting's Column, Boston Herald, spoke on "Politics and People." The American Classical School at Rome is situated on the Janiculum Hill and has several buildings. The director is Gorham Phillips Stevens, a New York architect previous to his appointment in 1912. His assistant is Mr. Frank Fairbanks, who held the Roman Fellowship in painting ten or twelve years ago. Professor Lamond of Columbia is at the head of the Music Department. For the year 1922 to 1923 the head of the Classical School, a one-year appointment, is Professor Tenny Frank of Johns Hopkins. The professor of classical studies, a one-year appointment, is Professor Grant Showerman of the University of Wisconsin; professors of art are Paul Manship and Barry Faulkner, sculptors, of New York. By contributing $250 a year, or $500 at one time, a college may secure for its graduates privileges which would cost each individual student from a non-supporting college $150 a year. Edith Talbot Jackson, '83, is studying at this school.
A Philadelphia branch of the Women Graduates' Club was organized in Philadelphia in February. Mrs. Eva Phillips Boyd, A.B. '03, Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, A.B. '06, and Mrs. Louisa Richardson Fisk, A.B. '83, attended the annual meeting of the North Atlantic section of the American Association of University Women. While in Philadelphia a group of women graduates of the University met at the College Club and organized a Pennsylvania branch of the Women Graduates' Club. At the organization meeting there were present, besides Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. Schofield, and Mrs. Fisk, the following: Mrs. Julia Cole Yarnall, A.B. '87; Mrs. M. Grace Garfield Layton, C.S.S.; Mrs. Almy Chase Grant, A.B. '96; Miss Ethel Cederstrom, A.B. '03; and Miss Ruth A. Carter, B.R.E. '22. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Julia Cole Yarnall; Secretary, Ruth A. Carter; Treasurer, Mrs. Almy Chase Grant; Executive Committee, Mrs. Helen Richardson Corkum, A.B. '16, Mrs. Layton, and Miss Cederstrom.

The Boston University Council, composed of the Deans of the various departments, sent to President Warren on his ninetieth birthday the following resolutions:

"The members of the University Council of Boston University join with the many thousands who will pay affectionate tribute to President-Emeritus William Fairfield Warren on the ninetieth anniversary of his birth, March 13, 1923.

"The services that he has rendered, as an educator abroad and as an author and publicist whose writings have influenced the wider life of the world, will justify all the praise that can be conferred upon him by his friends and admirers in many lands. Seldom has it been given to any man to touch so ably and so long the great places of inspiration, especially as they have dealt with the formation of the characters of youth.

"But we, who have been his partners or his inheritors in the main work of his life and who know with intimacy the University to which he gave not only its first presidency but its educational ideals as well, have special cause to felicitate him, and to felicitate ourselves, our city, our State, and our Nation, upon the wondrous service rendered by him through his many useful years. We assure him likewise that our estimate of that service increases with all added knowledge of his own work and of the life of the University to which he gave such tireless labor and such unfailing love.

"Therefore we send him this brief address as an inadequate expression of our personal regard and of our estimate of the intellectual and spiritual influences that have gone from his mind and heart into the life of the world.

"We wish for him yet many happy and useful days, commending him to that Great God whose servant he has been in all these nine fruitful decades."

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes,
Dean Homer Albers,
Dean Everett W. Lord,
Dean John P. Sutherland,
Committee.

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

ANNUAL COUNCIL MEETING OF EPSILON CHAPTER

The annual council meeting of Epsilon Chapter was held Tuesday evening, March 13, at the College of Liberal Arts. The first part of the evening was devoted to an observance of the 90th birthday of President-Emeritus Warren. The President of the Chapter, Mr. Guy Richardson, read a paper by Dr. John R. Chaffee, '94. Dr. Chaffee was prevented by illness from presenting the paper in person. Dr. Chaffee in his tribute to Dr. Warren spoke in part as follows:

"In these days when we behold our Alma Mater expanded into a University of twelve departments with ten thousand students and an influence extending over the entire world, it is well for us to remember that this great superstructure rests upon the foundation laid by William F. Warren. For while Jacob Sleeper, Isaac Rich, and Lee Claflin gave the foundation money, it was Dr. Warren who provided the ideals and the plan of organization. From Germany, where he studied at Berlin and Halle and served as president of the Martin Mission Institute, Bremen, he brought the best ideals of original research. From the English universities were taken the curricula of the humanities, deeply grounded in the classics, which became a most vital part of the foundation. To these ideals were added the essential elements of American democracy. In support of these principles Dr. Warren gathered about himself the strongest staff of teachers, most of whom were trained in both America and Europe. The spirit of their President was dominant in all their work. Boston University is his monument. Great is it that today he lives to see his fondest life dreams here made real.

"Also as teacher Dr. Warren made a unique contribution to the educational life of the University and of the country. His course was that of Comparative Religions, in which was given a new approach to the study of Christianity. Today all our theological schools and many of our universities have courses in the study of comparative religions."
Dr. Warren has stirred the world by his writings. Among these are 'Paradise Found,' 'Early Cosmologies,' and 'The Religions of the World and the World Religion.' His baccalaureate sermons have been notable for their influence. One of his early baccalaureates was given in the form of a dream of a world convention of religions in which Christianity was declared the one world faith. This discourse led Dr. John Henry Barrows to inaugurate the Parliament of Religions at the Chicago World's Fair of 1892.

Dr. Warren has exercised great influence as a minister. He has held a leading place in the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was a member of six general conferences. In this great body he was always abreast of the advance guard on every question before the Church. He was ever the man of vision. In questions affecting woman's place in Methodist legislation, equal lay representation, education, and religious freedom of thought, Dr. Warren's voice was always looked to for guidance. He ever lent the influence of a wise balance with a truly progressive attitude. His influence throughout the Church continues to this day, through his writings, a living power in keeping before the Christian public the highest vision upon every vital theme of thought and life.

When James W. Bashford was elected President of Ohio Wesleyan University, and was reluctant to leave the pulpit, Dr. Warren wrote him thus: Every word you say about the pulpit — its needs and possibilities in our Church — is most true. Nevertheless, when I remember that that would give to the Church but one great gospel herald in place of the scores and hundreds she is waiting for, and that these scores and hundreds are congregated in the halls of Ohio Wesleyan, to be 'made or marred' by the influence that can be brought to bear upon them at that place, I cannot fail to see and feel that at that point you can do more than anywhere else. The letter led Dr. Bashford to accept the presidency.

I venture the assertion that no man in America is more widely and deeply read than he. He studied ten thousand pages each year of new material, printed in various languages, in preparation for his class room. This was but the merest fraction of his reading, which included a deep interest in every field of research.

Professor Marshall L. Perrin gave interesting reminiscences of the College of Liberal Arts as it was during Dr. Warren's active administration.

Mr. Raymond A. Robbins reported that he had that day taken fifty roses to President Warren at his home and had extended to him the greetings of the Chapter.

The greater portion of the business meeting was given over to a discussion of plans for the June reunion, which is to be held at Auburndale again this year.

At a board meeting following the council meeting Marion A. Wheeler, ’20, was elected Secretary.
For the first time in many years the number of men elected to Phi Beta Kappa in the College of Liberal Arts exceeds the number of women. Of the eighteen members of the Class of 1923 who were elected on Saturday, March 24, eleven were men.

FACULTY NOTES

At the thirty-ninth Annual Meeting of the Modern Language Association of America, held at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, December 28-30, 1922, Professor James Geddes gave an address entitled: "Co-operation between Author and Publisher from the point of view of the Author." The firm of D. C. Heath & Co. have just issued three Spanish text-books, edited by Professor James Geddes and Mr. Joseph C. Palamountain: "Gil Blas," by el padre Isla, "Olocura o santidad," by Echegaray, and "Marianela," by Galdos. These texts appeared originally more than twenty years ago. So far-reaching have been the changes made by the Spanish Academy in the texts themselves, and so great the advance along pedagogical lines in the method of presenting the material, that it necessitated practically re-writing the books and furnishing them with entirely new, up-to-date, direct method exercises, thus continuing the usefulness of these popular Spanish texts.

The Preliminary Announcement of Vacation Courses at French universities, specially arranged for American professors, teachers, and students by the Comité des Voyages d'Etudes in France for the summer of 1923, has been posted. Heath & Co., are: "Descriptive Chemistry;" "Experimental Chemistry;" "General Chemistry; Parts I and II;" "Inorganic Chemistry for Colleges, Revised;" "Laboratory Manual of Inorganic Chemistry;" and "Practical Chemistry." SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Several new courses in the School of Education are gaining special attention and appreciation. The Monday evening course in Current History and Methods of Teaching has an excellent enrolment. Professor Ault, who has arranged the course, will give about one-third of the lectures; Professor Harlow will give others; and the remainder will be given by professors of history of eastern Massachusetts who have attained reputation as experts in the fields of the lectures.

Dr. Edson, recently retired from the associate superintendency of the New York City schools, has an interesting course on the "Principal of the Elementary and High School." His long experience in school administration gives him insight into the real problems of the principal.

Professor Groves began a course March 16 on "Education for the Home." He will discuss the place of the home in modern society and the problems arising from it. The course is offered with the co-operation of the Massachusetts Parent-Teacher Association, of which Mrs. Martha Sprague Mason, C.L.A. '87, is president.

The Camp Course continues its interest and influence. Summer camps are now recognized as a substantial part of the educational system, and those who conduct them need specific training to secure the best results from their work.

The School of Education has already a good prospect for a material increase next year in the number of its full-time students. The growth of this group of students has been most marked during the current year, amounting to about 60 per cent. From this time the competition of other courses is likely to make the increase of part-time students less rapid than heretofore. The School will augment its influence through a constantly growing body of full-time students.
The Art Department of the School of Education is securing wider recognition for the system, thoroughness, and high quality of its work. The attendance is growing rapidly and the equipment of the department is more than keeping pace with the needs of the students. The devotion of the instructors and the whole esprit de corps of the department are continually in evidence. The Saturday afternoon class, for mature students in art, has opened a new avenue of influence for the department, and one that is likely to have a wider appeal from year to year.

SCHOOL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION AND SOCIAL SERVICE

Fifty students in the school, including missionaries from Japan, India, and Portugal, and a native Chinese student, have formed what is believed to be the first Fine Arts in Religion club in the country. More than a thousand Sunday-school workers and pastors of Greater Boston attended the Easter program demonstrations which the School of Religious Education and Social Service, through its Fine Arts department, presented during the afternoon of March 5 at the Suffolk Hall and the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The class in pageantry, under Miss Bates' direction, staged the pageant entitled, "Thy Kingdom Come," by Miss Florence Converse. This was followed by presentation and interpretation of Easter pictures and slides by Professor Smith and assistants. Members of the faculty were present throughout the afternoon for conference with workers to help in their plans for Easter and Palm Sundays.

The Annual Banquet of the Graduate Club of the school was held on the evening of March 5 at the Westminster Hotel in Boston. One hundred and fifty students and faculty members attended. Dr. Hugh S. Magill, General Secretary of the International Sunday-School Council of Religious Education, was the principal speaker.

Dr. Harry C. Wilson, director of the Institute Division of the Board, will be in general charge.
