2004-03-01

Panel discussion: the challenges of European integration: views from "old" and "new" Europe

Scwhan, Gesine
Boston University Institute for Human Sciences

http://hdl.handle.net/2144/20113
Boston University
The Institute for Human Sciences at Boston University serves as a forum for new, non-partisan debate, research, and education in the matters of international (especially transatlantic) relations, introducing European insights and experiences to American debates on major social and political issues, and bringing American perspectives to bear on European discussions.
www.bu.edu/ihs.

The American Council on Germany is a private, American nonprofit non-governmental organization that was incorporated in 1952 to encourage reconciliation and understanding following the two world wars. The ACG's mission today is to strengthen and promote open communication and mutual understanding between the United States and Germany. To effectively meet common challenges and face changes confronting the United States and Europe, it is essential that these two key partners in the transatlantic alliance have a clear understanding of each other's concerns and interests.
www.acgusa.org