2004-10-21

European institutions and the future of democracy

Rosanvallon, Pierre
Boston University Institute for Human Sciences

http://hdl.handle.net/2144/20149

Boston University
PIERRE ROSANVALLON is Professor of History and Political Philosophy at the Collège de France and at the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales (EHESS) in Paris. He is also the Director of Studies at the Centre de Recherches Politiques Raymond Aron, a section of the CNRS. His research focuses on the history of ideas in France from the 18th to the 21st centuries and on theories of democracy. Professor Rosanvallon's numerous publications include: Le Modèle politique français. La société civile contre le jacobinisme de 1789 à nos jours (2004); La Démocratie inachevée. Histoire de la souveraineté du peuple en France (2000); Le Peuple introuvable. Histoire de la représentation démocratique en France (1998); Le nouvel âge des inégalités (1996); and La nouvelle question sociale (1995). His works have been translated into twelve languages.

VIVIEN SCHMIDT (RESPONDENT) is Jean Monnet Professor of European Integration in the Department of International Relations at Boston University and a faculty affiliate at the Center for European Studies at Harvard University. The recipient of numerous awards and fellowships, Professor Schmidt has published widely in the areas of European political economy and public policy. Her publications include The Futures of European Capitalism (2002); From State to Market? The Transformation of French Business and Government (1996); and Democratizing France (1990). Her forthcoming book: Democracy in Europe: Institutions, Ideas, Discourse (2005) explores the impact of the European integration on national democracies.